

Ideas that spark.

Welcome to NAAEE's webinar series presented in partnership with the US Forest Service.

eeinspire

Sparking innovation in environmental education

This series is designed to bring new ideas and thinking to USFS conservation educators and partners, who provide the public with high-quality environmental education programs across the country and beyond.

2023 eeINSPIRE Webinars

Webinars are open to all who sign up! All sessions will be recorded and archived on eePRO, NAAEE's online platform for environmental education professional development.

Check out recordings for:

Together We Decide: Practical Tools for Collaborative Decision Making

In this interactive workshop, the meeting facilitator explains the practical benefits for helping all voices be heard to equip and inspire attendees to help your own group make decisions together efficiently.

Speaker: Craig Freshley (Maine) is a professional facilitator, speaker, and author with a history of working with environmental educators.

Environmental Justice and the Future of EE

Environmental educators have a unique opportunity to empower communities living within impacted areas to take a stand for justice with the tools necessary to make change. This webinar identifies the connections between socio-cultural inequities, environmental issues, and the power of EE to make change.

Speaker: Parker McMullen Bushman (Colorado) is a dynamic keynote speaker, the COO of Inclusive Journeys, and founder of Ecoinclusive Strategies.

Future topics will include: new approaches to fostering collaborations and engaging communities, increasing civic engagement through education and service learning, becoming a natural and effective storyteller, citizen science in education, building a diverse and inclusive field, and more.

Register for upcoming webinars and watch recorded sessions here:

<https://eepro.naaee.org/learning/eewebinars>